

From: steven st catherine
To: Microsoft ATR,contactus@microsoft.one.com@inetgw,s...
Date: 11/25/01 4:20am
Subject: Microsoft and or

New Age Informations

Dear Sirs!

I am at a loss for words, as we will never know how these computers are constructed in full to operate, but with one eye open for the worst you see bits of the truth. Anybody with internet access can most probably tell you that on occasion you get access to the internet without the necessary procedure being completed. This is due in part to the fact that with the server provider blueyonder and internet explorer the initial home webpage can be displayed without the necessary internet access dialing procedure. Even if it seems to have come from the temp internet file it should not come up without internet access availability, and todays news or the available activities. As we know from the temp internet file you can enter the internet with only netscape, as it is windows, however dialing access procedure also apply. For the home webpage to be displayed without the initial dialing procedure then states that every computer with internet access is most probably accessible to Microsoft and bill gates. What are we to do? Even though I know Nokia, Siemens, Yahoo, and other possible interested parties have seemingly stolen from me it is small in comparison to the loss of material as you write it. Also to see a computer still running after you've switched it off is highly none competative.

Get your FREE download of MSN Explorer at <http://explorer.msn.com>